NAZIS REPORT BIG SEA VICTORY

Defense Strike Crisis Begins to Ease

GOVERNMENT SEES PEACE IN MILWAUKEE

Mediation Board Expects Quick Settlement of Tie-up At Allis-Chalmers.

WRIGHT FIELD AT WORK

AFL Union Ends Walkout There After CIO Dispute 'In Interest of Nation.'

(By Associated Press)

The government was reported hopeful today of quick settlement of the Allis-Chalmers strike at Milwaukee before the new national defense mediation board holds its first meeting Tuesday.

Production of vital defense articles at the Milwaukee factory was halted in January when CIO auto workers, seeking a union shop, walked out. The firm has $45,000,000 in defense orders.

A bright spot appeared in the decision of AFL building trades workers to return to work on projects vital to the army's air program at Wright Field, O. A strike of AFL craftsmen started March 4 because five CIO electricians were employed at the field.

John Breidenbach, president of the Dayton Central Labor union said the men would return to work today "in the interests of the nation."

CIO strikers at the plant of the Aluminum Company of America, Edgewater, N. J., called a meeting today to consider a suggestion from Sidney Hillman, associate director of the office of production management, to halt their nine-day strike, go back to work, and adjust a wage dispute afterward. The plant employs 3,000 and makes aluminum parts for aircraft.

The National Labor Relations board yesterday issued a complaint of unfair labor practices against the big Ford Motor company shortly after a federal mediator reported progress had been made in efforts to bring together the firm and the CIO United Auto Workers.

The complaint alleged the company operated "an extensive espionage system" among workers and maintained 'gangs of strong-arm men," to intimidate them.

Negotiations continued at a quickened pace today in an effort to settle the strike of 350 CIO workers at the Harvill Aircraft die casting plant at Los Angeles.

Officials of several west coast plane factories say they will need the Harvill castings urgently and may have to shut down unless they are forthcoming quickly.

Soft coal miners and operators planned to get down to business next week on a new two-year contract. The miners want $1 a day more for 330,000 men in the Appalachian area, with paid vacations and a guarantee of 200 working days annually. Negotiations have been going on in New York for a week.

Success Assured For Mansfield's Civic Music Drive

The Mansfield Civic Music 1941-42 series was assured a capacity audience today, according to Mrs. Mercedes Walker of Civic Music's New York headquarters, here this week to assist association workers in their annual membership campaign.

Dr. A. D. Fonkalsrud, president of the association and Mrs. Paul F. Cropper, general chairmen of the campaign, praised the work of the 185 men and women who have been engaged in the drive.

Co-operating in the campaign have been a number of chairmen from neighboring towns, Mrs. Russell B. Smith and Mrs. Ira Foster of Shelby; Dr. E. J. Schad and Arthur Boyce of Shelby; Mrs. V. B. Moffitt of Ashland; Richard Wolfe of Plymouth and Miss Ina Balliett of Lucas.

The drive closes today at 9 p. m. when there will be a final check-up at the Ohio Fuel Gas company, campaign headquarters. Mrs. Walker said that in the event members have failed to renew memberships they may do so until 9 tonight.

Building Up, Owners Find It's Illegal

Mansfielders File Suit to Protect W. Fourth Street Apartment.

Learning after completing an apartment building at West Fourth street and West Park boulevard that there are building restrictions against an apartment in that area, Samuel and Ada Frankel had filed a suit in common pleas court today for a declaratory judgment to protect themselves from interference in operation of the apartment.

The action names the Mansfield board of education and 47 other owners of 60 lots in the district surrounding the apartment. The school board was included as owner of Senior high school which, the petition contends, also was built in violation of the building code for that section of the city.

The plaintiffs state that the deeds to the two lots they purchased for the apartment building did not mention restrictions and they proceeded with the building without knowledge of any regulations.

After completing the building, however, they said they learned that earlier deeds contained restrictions against any building larger than a two-family residence.

In view of the former restrictions, there have been violations of the code on at least 30 of the 60 lots in the area, the plaintiff contend.

They state further that since no property holder in the community offered any objections when the building was being constructed, there should be no complaint now that it is ready for occupancy.

The petition asks the court to "remove the uncertainty as to whether the defendants can take any action because of the construction of the building."

Atty. T. J. McDermott, representing the apartment owners, said the case probably would not be heard for several weeks.

ABOARD USS. BENSON, Off Florida Coast — (AP) — President Roosevelt began his delayed deep-sea fishing vacation trip today when the White House yacht Potomac put to sea with the chief executive and other high government officials aboard.

In the president's party were Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, former Commerce Secretary Harry L. Hopkins, Major General Edwin M. Watson, and Stephen T. Early, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary.

The two ships are of 26,000 tons each, have a speed of over 30 knots, and are armed with eleven-inch guns beside smaller armament.

Grand Jurors Fail to Indict Her In Abandonment Case.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The Franklin county grand jury refused to indict Mrs. Helen Clemenshaw, Cleveland society woman, on a charge of aiding and abetting the abandonment of minor children.

The charge was filed against Mrs. Clemenshaw by Mrs. Harry Gooby, Worthington, who claimed the Cleveland woman induced her husband to abandon his six children. Gooby is serving a workhouse term for non-support. A $10,000 alienation of affections filed by Mrs. Gooby against Mrs. Clemenshaw is pending.

STARTS DRIVE

Hawley Says Liquor Sale to Minors Major Problem.

The state liquor board, headed by Harry E. Hawley of Mansfield, today launched a drive against the sale of intoxicants to minors by liquor permit holders.

The liquor board will consider sale to minors a major problem in the future, Hawley asserted.

William Cleary, state enforcement chief, said "mere observations" have been enough to justify a campaign against illegal sale to minors although no complaints concerning the lack of such enforcement have been received.

Hawley, former state liquor store superintendent, was named to the liquor board recently by Gov. John W. Bricker. He was elected chairman at the board's recent reorganization session.

PRIEST FACES COURT HEARING

Ashland Pastor to Be Brought Back From Hospital For Arraignment Next Week.

ASHLAND — Rev. William E. Rooney, admitted to Massillon state hospital for the insane Thursday, will be returned to Ashland next week to face charges of whipping 16-year-old Virginia Barrett in the nude, Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling announced today.

An indictment turned in Thursday by the grand jury charged that the priest "did unlawfully torment and cruelly and unlawfully punish" the girl by whipping her with a heavy leather strap while tied with a rope to a post and gagged with a towel, was mailed to the Stark county sheriff late yesterday.

Siverling said that the indictment would be served on Rev. Rooney and Dr. Arthur G. Hyde, head of the Massillon state hospital, who took part in the mental examination of the priest Wednesday in probate court. The prosecutor mentioned no date for arraignment but said that it would probably be some time next week.

Another mental examination of Rev. Rooney will be made following the arraignment, Siverling indicated.

Dr. Hyde and three other psychiatrists adjudged Rev. Rooney mentally ill Wednesday after an examination in probate court upon the request of his brother, Clarence Rooney. Judge H. E. Culbertson of common pleas court, however, told the grand jury that the probate court proceedings had "nothing whatever to do" with common pleas court proceedings.

O. S. R. Inmate Admits Crime For Which Another Serves

An 18-year-old inmate at Ohio State reformatory was reported today as having confessed a burglary for which another inmate is serving a one to 15-year sentence.

Assistant County Prosecutor James Hart of Cleveland, reported that Samuel Caputo of that city, who is serving a one to seven-year sentence for grand larceny, had signed a confession admitting the burglary last Nov. 12 at the home of Edward Szabo in Cleveland.

Anthony Buffa, 19, also of Cleveland, was found guilty of the crime on Jan. 13 by Judge Frank J. Lausche. Judge Lausche said today that he had notified Buffa's attorneys to apply for a new trial on the basis of new evidence.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent at the reformatory, said that he had not been informed of the confession.

Glattke stated that this case was not wholly similar to that of Rudolph Valent, 22, freed on Feb. 6 after serving two months for a robbery later confessed by another Cleveland resident, Stephen Sapko. Glattke said that Valent and Sapko had not seen each other after Valent had been admitted to the reformatory.

Buffa was admitted to the reformatory on Jan. 17 while Caputo arrived on Feb. 27, according to the institution's records.

Upper House Committee Confers on 7-Billion Measure, Vote by Monday Forecast.

WASHINGTON — National defense chieftians have advised congress that the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease fund will provide Great Britain and her anti-Axis allies with 10,700 more American war planes during the next two years, it was understood today.

Director General William S. Knudsen and other defense leaders told the senate appropriations subcommittee in secret session that the $2,054,000,000 (B) item of the record appropriation was designed to furnish that number of planes.

The planes would be in addition to the 11,800 Britain had ordered in this country. Of these, 3,400 have been delivered.

Some committee members were reported to have questioned the ability of the industry to meet Britain's needs but Knudsen and other witnesses were said to have expressed confidence that it could by expanding production facilities. ....

The $7,000,000,000 appropriation, approved by the subcommittee yesterday, was to be considered by the full committee today. It was expected to be approved virtually unanimously and without change for floor consideration on Monday.

Many leaders predicted that the appropriation would pass the senate the same day by an overwhelming vote. The lend-lease bill was not approved until after 18 days of debate.

If the senate makes no changes, the appropriation bill will be pushed by airplane to President Roosevelt who is

YUGOSLAV HELD

Former Prime Minister Turned Over to British For Safety.

CAIRO, Egypt —(AP)— It was officially reported in British circles today that former Premier Milan Stoyadinovich of Yugoslavia is in British hands.

The announcement said he was handed over to British headquarters by the Yugoslav government for safe keeping. He will be detained in British territory.

(It was reported authoritatively in Belgrade this week, as the situation grew tense over German demands for alignment of Yugoslavia with the Axis, that Stoyadinovich had been exiled to Greece on charges that he had attempted to regain power and swing the nation into the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo camp.)

Claim 224,000 Tons of Enemy Shipping Sunk

German Warships, Prowling Atlantic, Credited With Sending 116,000 Tons of British Cargo Boats To Bottom of Ocean.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—The staggering total of 224,000 tons of British merchant ships was sent to the bottom yesterday by German warships and long-distance bombing planes, it was claimed in Berlin today.

These figures include 116,000 tons of shipping sent to the bottom by German warships in the Atlantic in a terrific blow against shipments of war materials to Britain from the United States.

(Editor's Note—While the German announcement did not say so, it appeared likely the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau may have been responsible for this attack.)

In addition, the German high command said, German bombers sank 31,000 tons of ships and German U-boat raiders sent 77,000 tons to the bottom in an attack on a convoy off the west African coast.

The high command coupled its announcement of the new assaults against shipping at sea with a statement that German bombers subjected Plymouth to a heavy raid during the night for the second successive time.

The new attacks against convoys in the Atlantic, authorities declared, mean that German naval forces have opened in full force their long-heralded spring offensive.

They said German warships had dealt a "staggering blow" against what was believed to have been the first major ship of war supplies from the United States to Britain under the new lease-lend law.

Millions of dollars worth of ships and materials were sent to the bottom, it was claimed. Informed sources described the naval blow as one of the "most spectacular coups" Germany has yet achieved in the entire war.

A high command announcement stated 22 armed merchant vessels totalling 116,000 tons were sunk by German warships which attacked a British convoy in the North Atlantic and that 800 survivors were taken aboard the German vessels.

Advices from both London and Washington indicated some of the heaviest battle cruisers of the British fleet now are searching for the two Nazi raiders, which may even be operating in or near what are now regarded as "American waters" within the 300-mile neutrality zone.

A dispatch from Washington last night stated United States Atlantic fleet units and army and navy patrol bombers have been placed on the alert to watch for any belligerent warships which

IMPATIENT: Nazis Push Serbs for Action on Pact

BULLETIN

ROME—(AP)—Informed Germans said today Yugoslavia was expected to sign herself into the tri-partite partnership within the coming week. They expressed belief that a pact merely signifying bilateral friendship, as first suggested by Yugoslav negotiators, was out of the question.

(By United Press)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—Yugoslavia's political crisis over collaboration with Germany widened dangerously today as Germany, with growing impatience, indicated that the solution would be the signal for a blitzkrieg war on Greece.

Leaders of the important Serb Agrarian party ordered all its members who held government positions to resign and it was understood that the party's six senators, all leading men in national politics, would be ordered to quit today in protest against the cabinet's proposal to transfer German war materials across the country to aid a Nazi attack on the Greeks.

Premier Dragisha Cvetkovich and Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovitch had been compelled to cancel plans to fly to Vienna today to sign a pact with Germany.

Three cabinet ministers had resigned; two more threatened to resign; Milan Gavrilovic, minister to Moscow and co-leader of the Serb Agrarian party, was reported to have quit his post.

It was increasingly clear that German impatience was growing. Though it was denied Germany had demanded yesterday that the agreement be signed within 48 hours, most reliable informants admitted that Germany had told the government it wanted quick action.

The government informed Germany last night that the departure of Cvetkovitch and Cincar-Markovitch for Vienna had been postponed until substitutes could be found for the three men who had resigned from the cabinet.

Germany, informants said, agreed to the postponement but expressed the "wish that the crisis be settled most quickly.

It was indicated that the signature of a German-Yugoslav agreement would mean an immediate attack on Greece by hundreds of thousands of German troops massed in southern Bulgaria.

Popular feeling, traditionally anti-German, was mounting against the agreement with the

PLEDGE: Russia Agrees To Keep Hands Off Turkey

(By United Press)

ISTANBUL—Russia was said by reliable quarters today to have given Turkey written assurances that she has nothing to fear from the Soviet Union in what was described cautiously as the event that "the Turkish political situation should deteriorate."

Well-informed Turkish quarters believed that Russia's assurances constitute, in effect, a pledge that Russia will not take advantage of the situation to attack Turkey in the Caucasus in the event Turkey goes to war against Germany.

Word that Turkey has obtained a Russian pledge followed the circulation of circumstantial rumors that Russia might sign a non-aggression treaty with Turkey.

Since Russia and Turkey have been bound by a non-aggression pact since 1925, it appeared that any Russo-Turkish understanding would implement the 1925 treaty.

(A United Press dispatch from Moscow reported that Turkish Ambassador Ali Hadar Aktay, conferred last night with the Soviet vice commissar for foreign affair A. V. Vishinsky. It was the second conference of Akzay and Vishinsky to be reported this week.)

According to reports circulating here, Turkey's foreign minister Sukru Saracoglu and the Russia ambassador Alexei Vinagrador are expected to sign a Russo-Turkish accord at Ankara.

The Russian reports were received with some caution here be-

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — "So the red-headed kid from burlesque married the usherette who was a licensed embalmer but didn't like the work. He was 17 at the time, and she was 16, and they went on together in show business . . ."

Make a good movie, mightn't it? If it ever does, Red Skelton would have to be the star—Richard "Red" Skelton of Vincennes, Ind.

You've seen Red, the chipper, grinning. Irrepressible. Skelton, in a few movies ("Flight Command," "Having a Wonderful Time") and you will be seeing him in "Lady, Be Good," the new musical. But you haven't seen one of his stage routines — say the one about the television announcer plugging "Guzzler's Gin." That's the sort of thing that keeps Hollywood busy looking for the right spot for him.

ROBBIN COONS

HERE'S Red's story, told with the proper degree of cockiness:

"I was ten when I left Vincennes and joined up with a medicine show at Lawrenceville, Ill. I've done all kinds of shows except carnivals—I mean all kinds. Lot of fun, sometimes I didn't eat—much. I was in burlesque in Kansas City when one of the acts at the Pantages failed to show and they sent for me.

"Edna—she's my wife—was an usherette at the Pantages. We got married. Edna's smart, but I never got past the seventh grade. I didn't think much of education, but she changed my mind. I had a private tutor for five years, and before that Edna taught me, and now I'm taking an extension course from Northwestern.

WELL, after Edna and I got married we went ahead, and she was a fine partner, feeding me gags. . . She got to writing 'em herself. We had some tough times, though . . . For three days in New York once we were so hungry we walked along the street looking for a nickel.

Radio helped . . . We got into steady money—and then in Montreal we got 26 weeks in one theater . . . When I came to Hollywood for 'Having Wonderful Time' my salary jumped to $3.00 a week—for 12 weeks . . . Once in Chicago we talked a salesman into selling us a $3,900 car for our old one and 20 cents, all we had. With the car we drove up with flash and got a $200 a week job as m. c. of a walkathon.

So the kid from burlesque married the usherette, and that was 10 years ago, and you'd scarcely say there's been a dull moment since, would you?

Foes Develop St. Lawrence Plan Attack

BRICKER BUDGET NOW TARGET OF ASSEMBLY DEMS

But Their Party Solidarity Shows Signs of Breaking, Their Chances Slim.

COLUMBUS—Beaten so far in all their attacks on Gov. John W. Bricker's financial program, the Democratic minority in the legislature now is centering its drive against his state budget.

Present indications are their opposition to the budget will net them the same results it did against other administration financial measures—nothing.

Signs of possible breaks in the Democratic solidarity this week added to the belief that Republicans would be able to carry into effect the entire program as outlined by the chief executive.

Two house Democrats broke away from party lines to join the majority as the house taxation committee recommended re-enactment of the one cent liquid fuel tax for two more years.

In the senate, where the bill had its inception, the battle was fought out strictly on party lines.

However, Democratic State Chairman J. Freer Bittinger, who has been directing the Democratic fight against the administration financial program, sees possibility of a break in the Republican ranks on the budget bill.

Bittinger asserted in a statement today:

"It is generally known that several Republican members of the legislature are about ready to openly revolt against the dictates of the governor. It has become more and more difficult for these members to return to their home communities with satisfactory explanations to be given to the interested voters who elected them to office."

Chief complaint against the budget by Bittinger and the Democratic legislators is their contention the governor deliberately underestimated revenues in order to build up a large treasury surplus.

HUNTS 2 BOYS

Sheriff Asked to Search For Butler High School Youths.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson was asked today to help locate two Butler high school boys who were reported missing from their homes since Wednesday.

His companion is approximately the same height and weight. He was wearing a blue checkered jacket and green trousers. The report was submitted to the sheriff by Joe Walker, Butler R. D. 1, father of one of the youths.

1,100 ATTEND BIRD LECTURES

Cruickshank Addresses 2 Meetings At Simpson High.

Allan D. Cruickshank, authority on bird lore and one of the nation's wildlife photographers, gave illustrated lectures on birds before more than 1,100 persons yesterday afternoon and last night in John Simpson junior high school auditorium.

He entertained approximately 500 persons last night with lantern slides of rare birds in Florida, including a few shots of the Seminole Indians of the Everglades.

The pictures, all in natural color, showed unusual close-ups of water and land birds and their nesting habits. Cruickshank concluded his performance with imitations of a number of bird calls.

His performance in the afternoon was for school children. The lectures were sponsored by the Mansfield Nature club and Kellogg Audubon club.

Testify They Struck Prisoner, But Claim He Attacked Them In First Place.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON—Two Akron patrolmen will appear at a preliminary hearing Monday to answer charges of second degree murder in the death of 22-year-old Walter Lamb, jr., victim of a fatal black-jacking at city jail.

Jacob M. Yingling, 46, a member of the police force for 23 years, and Richard M. Coburn, 32, on the force five years, were free under $2,500 bail each, following their arraignment.

Both patrolmen testified at a coroner's inquest they struck Lamb only after he had attacked them, using abusive language, as they put him in a cell last Saturday night. Lamb, an employe at the Ravenna ordnance plant, was charged with intoxication.

Dr. R. E. Amos, county coroner, said he probably would not conclude his investigation until Monday. Meanwhile the civil service commission voted to open another investigation next Thursday. Both patrolmen have been suspended.

Prisoners at the city jail testified they saw Lamb struck. One witness said one of the patrolmen knocked Lamb down and "hit him three more times while he was lying there."

The patrolmen said at the inquest the victim's head struck the iron cell door as he fell.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD—James Stewart, winner of the motion picture academy of arts and sciences award for the best performance of 1940, enters the army today, trading a $12,000 a month salary for $21.

The six foot, four inch tall Stewart was the first top notch star to be drafted. He's going into the army because he wants to. He was underweight when first examined, and went on a diet and rest program to bring him up to army standards.

He went to bed early last night; having been ordered to report at Draft Board No. 245 today with 18 other draftees from his district. After roll call, the 19 board a street car for a downtown induction center. His studio, Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer, gave him a send-off party night before last.

Stewart starts his army training at the height of his career. He recently received a golden "Oscar," most prized trophy in Hollywood, for his performance in "The Philadelphia Story."

He had top roles in two pictures not yet released, "Ziegfeld Girl," and "Pot O' Gold." Another, "Come Live With Me," was released recently.

Stewart quickly wound up his Hollywood affairs, when the draft board notified him that he was in Class 1-A. He rented his Brentwood bungalow to Actor Burgess Meredith, sold his two-seated plane, and stored his new roadster.

Unmarried and 32 years old, Stewart hoped that his flying experience would lead to an air corps assignment.

A leghorn hen in a flock owned by Roy Mull, Bellville, R. D. 2, apparently got her signals mixed the other day and laid an egg that looks more like a cucumber than an egg. The freak is from one-half to five-eights inches across, much smaller than a normal egg, but its length is about the same as that of a large egg. It is shaped like a cucumber. The egg is being displayed by H. B. Swearingen, county Farm Security administration manager.

A remarkable exhibition of restraint was given Mansfield police this morning. Police said a woman motorist came into the office obviously "all steamed up" about getting a ticket for overtime parking at a parking meter. Before saying a word, however, she slowly counted to ten, and then paid her fine. "I still hate having to pay it" was her only remark.

DOUBT VALUE OF SEAWAY TO U. S. DEFENSE

Democrats In House, Senate Express Opposition to Roosevelt Project.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional foes of President Roosevelt's proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway development challenged its defense value today and organized for a last-ditch fight against its approval.

Opposition crystalized in the house and senate yesterday—initially under Democratic leadership—shortly after Mr. Roosevelt sent up the terms of the U. S.-Canadian agreement projecting immediate development of power and navigation facilities in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence river and eventual completion of the entire seaway.

The president advised that he would ask congress soon for legislation to authorize the projected construction.

Rep. Alfred M. Beiter, (D. N.Y.) and Chairman Schuyler Otis Bland, (D., Va.) of the house merchant marine committee, said they would fight any appropriations or authorizations requested.

Beiter predicted the house would defeat the program, saying that not more than 175 of the chamber's 435 votes would be cast for the administration.

Democratic senators were among the first to express opposition to the president's proposal. These included Sens. Clyde Herring, Ia., Tom Connally, Tex., Alva B. Adams, Colo., and Bennett C. Clark, Mo. Adams led the successful fight in 1934 against senate ratification of the original St. Lawrence treaty, but would not say whether he planned a major role this time.

Under the proposed plans, the United States would pay for the bulk of the international rapids development—about $116,000,000 by the federal government and $90,000,000,000 by New York state.

Canada's share would be approximately $60 000,000, since the Dominion would be credited for money previously spent on developing the Welland canal, an important link in the seaway. The program would be completed in 1948, three years after completion of the international rapids link.

In opposing the plan, Bland told reporters that it would "materially injure existing ports and their facilities." He added that he could not see "where this project would contribute in any way to national defense."

Dismisses City Charges Against County Custodian

Basing his decision on a request by City Solicitor M. D. Ward, jr., Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch late yesterday dismissed the case of Anthony Moritz, custodian of Richland county courthouse, charged with violation of the city's plumbing code.

Moritz was arrested on March 11 on the complaint of Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector, who charged that the custodian had installed two water heaters in the basement of the county jail without holding a plumbing license.

In a hearing on that date, Judge Kalbfleisch granted Moritz a continuance until Wednesday, April 2.

Ward asked Judge Kalbfleisch to dismiss the charges because he believed that there was a lack of sufficient evidence to convict Moritz.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—or your friends may be saying Monday: "Too bad, but he was such a reckless driver."

It might seem that the devil would be getting rather annoyed by the sort of competition Hitler is giving him.

After years of observation, Jack Warwick, Toledo Blade paragrapher, concludes: "Usually, the man who could afford to lose doesn't gamble."

Strikers are Jeopardizing Lives

PERSONS inclined to argue against democracy, self government and "majority rule" will find their case much strengthened by study of the bus strike which tied up surface transportation in New York City during the past eleven days.

Bus service was resumed today, after "both sides" had accepted a compromise agreement, subject to arbitration later.

The strike of 3,500 employes of 31 lines operating 1,146 buses, seriously interfered with the reasonable rights of an estimated 1,000,000 persons accustomed to depend on that form of transportation.

Reference to "both sides" accepting a compromise agreement considers only the few thousand persons actually involved as employes and employers. The one million persons who constitute the "public interest" are disregarded.

As compared with the score or more of strikes now hampering vital defense industries, the New York City bus strike was inconsequential—it merely discommoded a million people each day of its duration and interfered with their routine of earning a living for themselves and their families.

But the more than 37,000 employes of defense industries who are out on strike are playing with lives and with national security. They are endangering American defense plans, impeding aid to Britain, and increasing the hazards of hundreds of thousands of young men in training camps who are being made ready for military service, if necessary.

The "right" to strike, it should never be forgotten, is a privilege accorded by the majority to minorities, as a means of self protection against abuse of managerial authority in matters of wages, hours and working conditions.

It was never intended that an abruptly called strike should hinge on such a picayunish point as a "jurisdictional dispute" between two opposing factions of organized labor (as in the Wright Air Field tie-up in Dayton), nor was it ever assumed that a time would come when a few thousand specially privileged workers would be permitted to retard a defense program on which the very life of the nation—and possibly the entire world—is dependent.

In his talk a week ago President Roosevelt said: "The determination of America . . . must not be obstructed by unnecessary strikes of workers, by short-sighted management, or by deliberate sabotage. . . . You will have to be content with lower profits from business, because obviously your taxes will be higher. You will have to work longer at your bench, or your plow, or your machine. . . . Let me make it clear that the nation is calling for the sacrifice of some privileges, but not for the sacrifice of fundamental rights."

Since that address the president has appointed an 11-member mediation board intended to bring order out of the strike chaos which is now playing havoc with essential production for national defense and aid to Britain. It will also be the purpose of this board to find ways to arbitrate future differences without resort to strikes.

Unless these efforts succeed it may appear that there will be no way to avoid the compulsion which has marked the draft of young men for military training—for, as conditions now are, the requirement for uninterrupted production of war materials is even greater than immediate need for increased manpower in the army, navy, marine corps and aviation service.

Benefits From Tree-Planting

THE FOLLY of plowing up too much prairie land and cutting down too many trees became painfully clear to the whole country in 1935 when prolonged drouth in the west sent great dust clouds into the air. They darkened the sky all the way to the Atlantic seaboard and even made mud on decks of ships 600 miles from shore.

A remedy was suggested and applied. That was the planting of shelter belts of trees. There was some doubt of the practicality of the program, but work began. Today, six years later, amazing success has been achieved.

There are 14,000 miles of such plantings growing on 22,000 farms. Less than 3 per cent of all the belts planted have been abandoned. Four out of five trees planted last year survived. Plantings of other years have done about as well. The highest rate of survival is shown by the familiar cottonwood, which used to be almost the only tree of that region. But others have done well, too, including the green ash, American and Chinese elms, hackberry, black and honey locust, osage orange, native wild plum, chokecherry, Russian mulberry, desert willow, catalpa, black walnut and cedar.

Many of the trees will produce useful timber as well as protect the soil. The shelter belts and the lessons learned from them make good material for Arbor day study.

Those Life-Saving Lines

THERE died at Elgin, Ill., the other day a 73-year-old man who was credited with originating a device which has saved many lives. Theodore J. Schmitz, it is said, first proposed the painted lines in the middle of paved highways. The dividing strip—sometimes a ridge of concrete and sometimes a pleasantly landscaped area nearly as wide as the highway itself—came after the painted line and was really an elaboration of it.

There are impatient motorists who disregard those white or yellow lines on the highway, and it is in their ranks that many bad accidents occur. But there would be a great many more such if the lines were omitted.

There's always a wonder if the radio comedian's jokes would get as many laughs if the studio audience paid an admission charge.

Ohio State university has put in a short course on ready mixed concrete—which at least marks a departure from the abstract.

Snorers in an eastern penitentiary have been segregated—so as not to inflict extra punishment on other prisoners.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Among the most interesting persons in New York are those who sing. I don't mean the Met.

These people sing on the streets, in the subways, with or without any show of interest by their audiences.

There's a fellow in the office who gets a big kick out of uninhibited singers. He was telling the other day about a tenor who was doing a piece from "Rigoletto" as he dressed after a workout at the Y. M. C. A.

From far down the room of lockers came a mild protest, but the singer went on to another selection. Later he turned to a companion, and explained:

"Sure, I sing in here. I sing anywhere somebody might hear me. There ain't so many tenors running loose but that I'm worth givin' a try. But somebody gotta hear me first. I don't have time to run around looking for a singing job. A fellow's gotta eat, you know."

My midwestern colleague avowed Nelson Eddy himself couldn't get away with a concert in the gymnasium dressing room back home. "The boys just don't go in for indiscriminate showing off of talents out there," he observed. Then he told another singing story.

He was waiting for a Fifth avenue bus one Sunday afternoon. The strains of "Ol' Man River" came rolling from the arcade of a nearby shop entrance. A young Negro, with the acoustical advantages of the glass archway, was making himself heard for a block in either direction.

Between numbers the lad stepped over to take the nickels and dimes from a cardboard box he kept at a descreet distance from his singing location.

MY midwestern friend was fascinated ,as usual. He forgot about his bus.

He barely had taken in the situation when interest was added by the appearancse of a well-groomed and richly dressed woman of about 45. She stopped, looked and listened. She tilted her head, she rolled her eyes. Finally, she dug into her purse and came up with a pencil and a card. She approached the boy and spoke a few words in low tones. She made some notes, nodded stiffly and marched away.

"This looks interesting," thought my friend. And he stepped in.

"What did the lady want?" he asked in his most enthusiastic tone.

"She got my name," the boy said without any show of emotion.

"Did she say anything else?"

"Oh, she said something about lessons."

"She offer to pay for 'em?"

"Oh, yeah."

"Well, that's fine."

"They all do that," said the boy. "There's one of 'em every Sunday."

"Did you ever hear from one of them?"

"Never did."

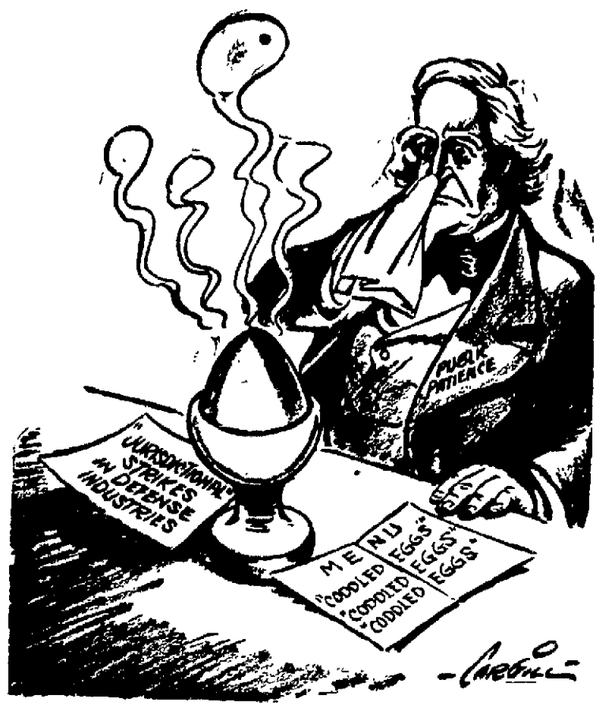
TIME FOR A CHANGE



Vision Started Grand Coulee Dam

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—I'll leave it to the others to give you the staggering figures on Grand Coulee dam. It's the biggest thing by far ever built by man.

What I want to tell you is the story that Rep. Knute Hill, of Prosser, Wash., told me. It is the story of the vision of three "little men" and of a fourth who joined them immediately in that vision and in the great battle against ridicule, indifference, and the constant dinning in their ears of the phrase, "It can't be done." It can be writen now, because it is done. With the opening of the Grand Coulee dam, this week-end their vision is a reality.

Some day some poet may make verses about it as well known as those of Robert W. Service, which start: "A bunch of the boys were whooping it up"—except that these "boys" weren't whooping it up; they were just eating lunch. And it wasn't in any saloon; it was in the Ephrata cafe, in Ephrata, Wash. And the "boys" were just business men of this little town of 516 population.

It Started In 1918.

THEY were William M. "Billy" Clapp, lawyer; Gale Mathews, abstractor, and Rufus Woods, editor of the Wenatchee (Wash.) Daily World. It was the summer of 1918 and most everybody was talking about the war and the second Battle of the Marne. But not these three. They were mulling over the future of the Great Northwest and they fell to talking of that stretch of millions of acres of rich but too-arid land that rolls up and away from the cliffs of the Columbia river east of the towering Cascade mountains.

That was their land. They knew what it would do if it had water. They knew that it once had had water. Ages ago, an ice barrier slipped down from the north, blocked up the Columbia river and changed its course to the south where hundreds of feet above its bed, it gouged out the now dry, dead-end canyon which is called Grand Coulee. Then the ice receded, the river dropped back into its old channel and left Grand Coulee and surrounding land high and dry.

Probably somebody, mopping his brow, said: "I wish we had an ice pack now."

It was "Billy" Clapp who said: "Why not? We could dam the Columbia and then pump the water up into the Coulee."

So the story goes, Mathews said he thought that was a darn good idea and Rufus Woods hammered the table and said: "Billy's got it!"

In the days that followed, talk turned to plans and plans to action. The first plans for the project were doodles on that Ephrata cafe tablecloth. They started writing letters and making speeches to small groups. Woods started exploding with editorials in his newspapers.

15 Years of Effort.

FARMERS called them nuts. Others just shook their heads. If they had seriously suggested bending the Columbia river bed skyward and riding the current to the moon, few of their neighbors would have considered them any crazier. It was some time along there that "Jim" O'Sullivan, who had already mastered the feat of becoming both a lawyer and engineer, decided if they were crazy, he wanted to be crazy, too.

For nearly 15 years, they bombarded the state legislature, Washington business men, farmers, congress and the government in Washington, D. C., with every known form of persuasion up to the borderline of violence. As the depression moved into the '30's, what had been only a vision in a little Ephrata cafe became a vision in the nation's capital and plans were drawn and funds issued for start of the great project.

Now, with its first hydroelectric unit finished and water backing up behind that 500-foot high gargantuan wall of concrete into what will eventually become a 150-mile long lake, the only vision left is that needed to bring the great industrial and agricultural empire to its full flowering.

And that's the story of the four Fathers of Grand Coulee, as it was told to me. Without them, the "biggest work ever done by man" might never have been done at all.

'I Live on Air'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEVEN-THIRTY P. M. Mom hangs up the last dish towel, exchange an apron for a darning basket, turns off the kitchen light. Dad scuffles into shabby house slippers, sprawls in his favorite chair, lights a pipe and turns the dial. The radio's on the air.

There's a scene that's duplicated in millions of American homes nightly. Into those homes, however humble, the world comes pouring. The world of news, sports, music, fashions, serials, weird and assorted features. And, as is our way, we take it as it comes, unquestioning. Never thinking of the risk, adventure and terrific hardship which may lie behind a 15-minute broadcast. Yet that's a far bigger story than the immediate tale of which you listen. The story of the men behind the air stations.

Want to forget your personal bewilderment and war worries for a while? Want to enter an entirely new world and share its danger and excitement, its triumphs and absurdities? And, incidentally, meet two Regular Guys, talking to you over their camp fires? Then take this book tip and read "I Live On Air" by A. A. Schechter and Edward Anthony.

A. A. Schechter is an old and case-hardened reporter, now general go-gettem for N. B. C. Ed Anthony's just—Ed. Amiable, lovable, smiling Ed who carries more wallops in his portable than a tin horn gambler has aces. And Heaven help you if you sit in on a poker game with either of them. For both of these laddies have gambled with life as well as pasteboards, and have learned how to turn a pair of deuces into a royal flush without batting an eyelid. Which is why their tale of what happens behind and before the mike will open a new world to you, or I'll eat this copy paper.

How, Frinstance, would you like to broadcast from the depths of an Egyptian Pharoah's tomb, first getting past the Dirty Looks and Dark Connivings of all Cairo's Old Timers? Take it from me, stranger, I wouldn't like it—and would have been going northeast in one heckuva hurry when the moment arrived. But not so A. A. S., who, seemingly, got softer and softer the more they showed him around.

Or maybe you'd prefer broadcasting an interview from the world's first public stratosphere flight, with the balloon bursting in midnight darkness at fifty-five thousand feet—and nothing, seemingly, between you and eternity but a swell, spatter landing. Another stunt that is N-E-V-E-R going to be on my program, buddy, but it's certainly swell to sit on a nice, firm foundation and read all about it.

Then there was that highly publicized International Contest of Singing Mice. Don't snicker. Mice do sing. The press agents say so. But you know press agents. One of them once called me "a lithesome blonde." Since I stopped being lithesome, at least forty pounds back, I've had my tongue in my cheek ever since when reading a publicity release.

But there was no fooling about those Singing Mice. They really had 'em—all over the place. With all the world listening. As to the symphonic results, I've still got to be shown. Maybe Ed Anthony turned squeak soprano for the event—I wouldn't put it past him. With scampering Sound Effects by Mister Schechter.

But they aren't all grins in that Wave Length Parade. There is tragedy to, so stark you'll be putting the book down until you can take the next page. The Hindenburg burning, just as it touched safe landing. Screams of agony knifing the air, a reporter unable to continue his record because of the nausea that rocked him. . . . The heart wrenching word-by-word broadcast of that ghastly German crash through betrayed and beaten France. . . . The flight that almost failed across the frozen, trackless Alaska, to rescue a Canadian Premier who had disappeared. . . . The nightmare of reporting a big flood—or even a Big Game.

Life as it really is, before they condense it into 15 minutes of words. And the everlasting human hope and spunk and dauntless humor which makes such broadcasting possible. It's all there in one two-fisted, living book—"I Live On Air." It's medicine for what ails you—and most of the rest of us. But, with all respect, A. A. and Ed, I'll take mine at home. Sitting down.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Roosevelt's Call to Americans Gets Attention All Over World

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE WORLD to which Franklin D. Roosevelt addressed his speech—relayed in 14 languages—was on edge.

His own people had just witnessed the passage of a bill which touched off a gigantic campaign to rush arms abroad.

Britons were expecting invasion by the Germans, and so were the battling Greeks.

Neutral Yugoslavs and Turks were trying to decide how close they should permit their countries to be drawn to the Axis.

Chinese were hearing Japanese reports that America would be so busy supplying Britain that she would overlook China's needs.

People in 12 Nazi-occupied areas were wondering if America planned to use her influence to obtain their countries' freedom.

And Nazi officials were trying to determine how much their plans might be affected by American aid to their opponents.

For all these groups, Mr. Roosevelt had blunt words:

ON NAZISM.

"We know that although Prussian autocracy was bad enough, Nazism is far worse.

"These men (Nazis) and their hypnotized followers call this a new order. It is not new. It is not order.

Humanity will never permanently accept a system imposed by conquest and based on slavery."

ON PROSPECTS OF U. S. AID.

"From now on . . . aid will be increased—and yet again increased—until total victory has been won."

"The American people . . . have demanded, and got, a policy-of-unqualified, immediate, all-out aid for Britain, Greece, China and for all the governments in exile whose homelands are temporarily occupied by the aggressors."

ON OTHERS TO BE AIDED.

"Upon the (American) nation's will to sacrifice . . . depends our ability to aid other nations which may determine to offer resistance.

"Upon that will may depend practical assistance to people now living in nations which have been overrun, should they find the opportunity to strike back in an effort to regain their liberties."

ON THE ROLE OF AMERICANS.

"The determination of America . . . must not be obstructed by unnecessary strikes of workers, by short-sighted management. . . .

"You will have to be content with lower profits from business because obviously your taxes will be higher.

"You will have to work longer at your bench, or your plow or your machine."

Reactions Abroad.

London News Chronicle—"America is all out to win. In a technical sense she still is not in the war, but in every real sense she is in it up to the hilt."

Adolf Hitler: "No power and no support coming from any part of the world can change the outcome of this battle in any respect. England will fall."

Fascist editorial: FDR is an "ignorant bully."

Japanese Times: "Plainly it is now a world war of the totalitarian nations with the Axis on one side and the democratic totalitarians on the other."

For Labor Peace.

In the present emergency it is essential, FDR said later, "that all work necessary for national defense shall proceed without interruption and with all possible speed."

As a concrete move to avert such interruptions he named an 11-man "National Defense Mediation Board." It was empowered to make every reasonable effort to settle bona fide labor disputes in defense industries and to designate impartial arbitrators when both parties agree to abide by decisions.

FDR named Clarence A. Dykstra, cool-headed director of Selective Service and president of the University of Wisconsin, as head. He was one of three representatives of the public on the board.

The public's other representatives:

William Hammatt Davis, New York patent attorney.

Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina.

Labor's representatives:

George Meany, general secretary of AFL.

George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks and AFL vice president.

Phil Murray, head of CIO.

Thomas Kennedy, vice president of United Mine Workers of America (CIO).

Employers' representatives:

Walter C. Teagle, former president of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Cyrus Ching, vice president of the U. S. Rubber corporation.

At Home

Disputed Passage.

For 26 years North Americans have wrangled about the advisability of enabling sea-going vessels to steam down the St. Lawrence River to the Great Lakes; and of developing more power along the way.

In 1932 the two countries agreed in a treaty to share the cost; but the U. S. Senate refused to ratify it.

President Roosevelt now sees in the project a means of (1) providing cheap power to speed up defense production and (2) obtaining a safe haven for ship construction.

During the week he signed a simple agreement with Canada to carry out the project at an estimated cost of $266,000,000. Since he did it by an agreement instead of an international treaty, approval by a two-thirds senate majority is not necessary. Congress will be asked simply to appropriate the necessary funds.

Britain Unloads.

Britain has existing orders here totaling $2,700,000,000 but none of our $7,000,000,000 lease-lend fund is to be used to pay this bill. Britain already has paid $1,682,000,000 and is dipping into her financial resources here to pay the remainder.

Early in the week Britain's financial envoy, Sir Edward Peacock, announced that he had sold the American Viscose Corp. (giant rayon yarn and fibre company) to a group of American investment bankers. The company has been valued at more than $100,000,000 and regarded as Britain's largest directly-owned U. S. industrial enterprise.

Rail Wrecks.

As a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train roared around a bend 28 miles northwest of Pittsburgh during a snowstorm last Sunday night the locomotive leaped the tracks. The four coaches and a baggage car were whipped over a 50-foot embankment to the Ohio river. Four persons were killed, more than 100 injured. Company officials said all spikes had been removed from the outside rail.

Tuesday, two days later, an Erie Railroad freight train out of Cleveland craned into the side of a company train near the Ravenna arsenal. About 175 construction workers on the commuter train were injured. Company officials blamed "man failure."

Deportation Snag.

An alien being deported must have a passport from his native country and a means of transportation to that country. Attorney General Jackson in a letter to the house judiciary committee said there were now 8,091 outstanding deportation warrants. Of these 3,947 cannot be executed because the deportees' native countries have refused passports and 2,302 because transportation cannot be arranged.

Abroad

Food Makes News.

An aftermath of the threat by France's Admiral Darlan to use the French fleet if necessary to get food ships through the British blockade was a French-U. S.-British conference in Washington. It appeared that Britain might back down on its ban on food for France. Reports spread that an agreement was being concluded which would permit France to load two of her ships in New York harbor with grain and take them through the blockade. The supplies would be distributed in France under supervision of the American Red Cross.

Note to Escapists.

One product of the tumultuous civilized world has been the many escapists yearning to flee to a remote isle. Recently reports have come from one of the most celebrated idyllic islands, Tahiti. A hundred-foot Free French schooner reached San Francisco with a load of dried coconut meat to be traded for rice and flour to relieve an acute food shortage at Tahiti. A passenger said that most Americans have been driven from Tahiti because steamers no longer drop off bread and meat. The natives, with their diet of breadfruit, coconuts, fish and fruit, apparently were not so hard-pressed.

U-Boats In Mid-Atlantic?

Britain told America that at least one U-boat was in mid-Atlantic under orders to operate off the American coastline. In the World war U-boats sent 65 vessels to the bottom in waters near America.

Winston Churchill added later that "not only German U-boats but German battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic and have already sunk some of our independently routed ships not sailing in convoy."

Nazis labeled the story "clumsy propaganda."

In Short

Proposed: By President Roosevelt, that the Social Security program be expanded over a period of years to increase (1) the number of beneficiaries and (2) money received.

Opened: The new $15,000,000 National Gallery of Art in Washington containing more than $50,000,000 worth of Old Masters, the gift of the late Andrew Mellon, and others.

Awarded: To Marian Anderson, who has been acclaimed as one of the world's ranking singers, the $10,000 Edward A. Bok award for the person who has advanced the "best interest of Philadelphia." The Negro singer pledged the money to charity and education.

Timely Editorial

New Honor To Singer.

In Philadelphia the other evening, Marian Anderson was presented the annual $10,000 Bok award before a distinguished audience. The great Negro contralto thus became the second woman and the first member of her race to receive the honor. The Bok award goes each year to the person judged to have done the most for the Philadelphia community during the year past. It has been given to such notables as Leopold Stokowski, Connie Mack, Dr. Chevalier Jackson, Dr. Lucy L. W. Wilson and Dr. Thomas S. Gates.

Miss Anderson's career and this new recognition is a fresh example of the constantly widening opportunities for those of her race and, for that matter, for those of any race to win distinction.

The singer once scrubbed porches in the city which now has given her its highest civic honor. Her mother was a laundress and Miss Anderson sang in church choirs and performed humble work herself to pay for the lessons which enabled her to earn a high place in American music.

Music, like any other form of art, is above race, nationality or creed. Marian Anderson's new achievement is one more gratifying reminder that this is true.—Columbus Dispatch.

Production Officials Outline British Aid Plans at Senate Hearing.

aboard the yacht Potomac off Florida for his signature.

Only one test appeared likely in committee and senate consideration. Sen. Gerald P. Nye, (R-N. D.) said he would renew his motion in full committee to halve the appropriation, and that he had the proxy vote of Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, (R-Ill.) for his motion. Nye and Brooks were the only members who voted to cut the appropriation in the subcommittee yesterday, and both joined in the unanimous vote sending the measure to the full committee.

A few hours after the committee acted, the house passed a $4,073,810,074 defense appropriation bill for 3,600 new army bombing planes and equipment for an eventual 4,000,000-man army.

This bill, which now goes to the senate, brought to more than $15,000,000,000 the defense funds in pending legislation, including the lend-lease appropriation.

Knudsen told the subcommittee that the entire $7,000,000,000 would be needed to finance the all-out aid operation and to build up this nation's defenses. He said defense expenditures in this fiscal year would total $18,000,000,000 and that they would be increased by 60 to 70 per cent in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Committee members said administration witnesses had been "vague" about the exact amount of equipment to be supplied Britain with the $629,000,000 item for vessels, ships, boats and other watercraft, including repairs and accessories.

A high official of the maritime commission, however, disclosed that 50 merchant ships, especially adapted to convoy, will be transferred to Britain "within a few days" as the first step in meeting the empire's critical shipping problem.

THEATERS

Punch Exceeded.

Despite the fact that "Tobacco Road" was filmed behind closed doors and enveloped in secrecy enough information has leaked out to give movie-goers a general impression of what to expect of the screen version opening today at the Ohio. Speculation as to how the screen script got around censorable portions of the stage play was rife but Nunally Johnson who wrote the script maintains that the punch of the play has even been exceeded without the necessity of including the off-color lines. Charles Grapewin's interpretation of Jeeter Lester is touted as one of the acting surprises of the year. This is true also of the players carrying the other leads such as Marjorie Rambeau as "Sister Bessie," Gene Tierney as "Ellie May," and Ward Bond as "Lov Bensey."

Army Fun.

Every one of the 53 commissioned and non-commissioned officers appearing in "Buck Privates," opening at the Madison today, is of actual military experience comparable to his rank with the exception of one who has never served a day in actual uniform. Army life as depicted in this film is a pretty enjoyable affair although everything happens to Bud Abott and Lou Costello, of stage and radio fame, in their roles of two misfit kids in khaki. Nat Pendleton is their nemesis in the role of a hardboiled sergeant. The Andrews Sisters quicken the tempo with their songs and the cast includes Alan Curtis and Jane Frazee. Eddie Quillan, Rod LaRocque and Sigrid Gurie carry the leads in "Dark Streets of Cairo," the co-feature.

Lane Sisters.

"Four Mothers," latest of the charming "Four Daughters" series will play the Ritz opening Sunday. Starring the Lane Sisters, Priscilla, Rosemary and Lola together with Gale Page as the Four Mothers, the picture has Claude Rains in the role of Adam Lemp, devotee of Beethoven. May Robson is seen as his philosophical sister while Jeffrey Lynn, Eddie Albert, Frank McHugh and Dick Foran are cast as the four husbands ideally suited to their wives. Clark Gable and Hedy LaMarr as a go-getter newspaper correspondent in Russia and woman street car operator respectively furnish fun and action in "Comrade X," the second picture.

Radio Headliners.

Radio headliners who have chalked up fans throughout the country are seen for the first time on the screen in "Barnyard Follies," the new feature at the Ritz, Sunday. Pappy Cheshire, old philosopher of the Barnyard Follies radio show over KMOX, St. Louis, is in the cast also the Cackle Sisters from the National Barn Dance program, and Isabel Randolph, the Mrs. Uppington of the Fibber McGee and Mollie Show over NBS. A benefit barnyard show featuring all the stars furnishes one of the big moments in the production as Pappy Chesire stages a benefit to help 4-H club boys and girls. Mary Lee, Jed Prouty and Rufe Davis augment the cast. "Sandy Gets Her Man," with Baby Sandy and Una Merkel holds second place on the bill.

Two Husbands.

"Too Many Husbands," aptly describes Jean Arthur's predicament in the picture opening Sunday at the Majestic. Wife of Fred MacMurray and later after his reported death, the wife of Melvyn Douglas, Jean is never quite sure to whom she is married especially after MacMurray turns up. Comedy twists throughout are furnished by the complications besetting the trio Dorothy Peterson, Melville Cooper and Harry Davenport aid in the frolic. The co-attraction, "Dance, Girl, Dance," revolves around the romantic and professional rivalry of two chorus girls played by Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara. Louis Hayward is the man in the case.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 23.

Sunday's horoscope is a rather doubtful one for progress and prosperity, holding omens of delays, irritations, disappointments and not particularly enjoyable health conditions. It might be a time for working along lines of least resistance, guarding the health, the funds and domestic harmony.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of fluctuating fortunes, with more difficulties and doubts than definitely productive results. Routine activities, philosophic life, with care for the health and conservation of finances are also enjoined. Be wise also as to legal entanglements.

A child born on this day should be serious, philosophical and shrewd, although easily imposed upon and subject to legal complications or doubtful intrigues.

For Monday, March 24.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather routine state of affairs, with little stirring out of the ordinary. Yet there may be surprising developments brewing which may have a disruptive influence on the life. Particularly operating on love affairs. Romance, thrills, upheaval are possible but not such as will be constructive and gratifying, because of deepseated treacheries.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather uneventful year as to business, but the emotional, romantic, social or domestic life may suffer disruption, peculiar or erratic conditions, with thrill and adventure attended by duplicity or betrayal.

A child born on this day should have original talents and faculties, with many unusual facets to its character.

Will Be In Festival

—Kelly and Green Photo.

Miss Polly Morrissey, above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Morrissey, 591 Highland avenue, will represent Sullins college, Bristol, Va., at the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester, Va., early in May. She will be a princess in the royal court, composed of representatives of leading colleges.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"IF I think best," my husband mocked me tenderly—"You know I'm with you on whatever you believe is best to be done. And my hat's off to you about Ronald, getting that letter out of him. How about it, will he play along with us, or will he go into silent grief again after he has seen Sam and Helena?"

"There'll be no further trouble with him," I said confidently. "If I go to New York with Marion's letter, he will go to Weirhampton with you and Carolyn, and then come on down to New York with you, ready to do anything he can in trailing and rescuing Marion."

"You're a wizard, old girl!" Dicky said warmly—"But—I don't like your going to New York alone. Why can't Ronald take Carolyn back by himself?"

"You know the answer to that question." I told him reprovingly "Ronald neither has the experience nor the equipment—physical or mental which you have for such a job as this."

"What a slam for Ronald!" he ejaculated, his face and eyes as solemn as those of the judge so beloved to the cliche writers.

"Not at all," I returned, as sedately as he. "Just a recognition of your special qualities."

"Merci! Madame," he said, "But I know what you're doing. You're throwing me a bone of flattery, thinking I'll agree to your going to New York by yourself. Well! you win—but NOT on account of the flattery. A train ought to be reasonably safe, and mind you, get a taxi inside the station when you get there."

"I'll watch out for everything," I promised him. "But we must find out about trains right away."

To See Mary First.

"We also have to telephone Dad and Lil," he supplemented.

"Oh! poor Lil!" I exclaimed with quickened anxiety. "What she must be suffering! And we have no word of comfort for her."

"Not over the telephone, anyway." Dicky assented. "After you get there, you might tell her all that has happened—about Carolyn—and Ronald—and the letter—or—do you think she ought to see that letter. If she believes it, she'll collapse and pass out of this life right there."

"But she never will believe it, any more than I did," I told him with calm certainty of Lillian's attitude. 'She will know at once what it is, and besides, before I see her, I hope to have some light on that letter."

"Oh! I see. You're going to Mary first!" he said.

"Yes. I must find out what she has to say about this letter before I do anything else," I answered. "Then, perhaps, I may have something encouraging to tell Lillian."

"I'm sure you will," he said with an optimism that buoyed me. "And now, I suppose we'd better get back to our usual chairs before Sam and Helena get back. D'ye think Ronald will be with them?"

"I'm sure he will," I answered, "and that reminds me. A few minutes after they come in, I want to slip upstairs and speak to Carolyn, and of course I don't want her mother to suspect what I'm doing, as Carolyn is supposed to be asleep after a nervous headache. Will you guarantee to keep the crowd down here. Ronald will aid you, I'm sure, for I told him I was going to see Carolyn and promise her that Ronald would not say a single word to her about Marion."

Dicky whistled.

"You sure are guaranteeing a big order there," he said.

"Ronald gave me his solemn promise on that," I said simply.

"Swell business!" he approved. "All right! I'll stand by. I'll keep them in this room and entranced, if I have to stand on my head and turn somersaults. So come along!"

He put his hand beneath my arm as we both rose, and piloted me back to the chairs we had occupied before.

"When you get back from seeing Carolyn; shall we beat it for our pretended outside errands, so we can do our telephoning?" he asked, as we settled ourselves in our chairs.

Don't Urge Child to Show-Off

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

The child, like everybody else, must show off. Otherwise he will be overwhelmed with feelings of inferiority. When, however, he has learned to get on well with others and cause them to like him, they don't think of him as showing off. It's all a matter of how secure he feels and how others respond to him.

The adult who relates a personal experience in a way to delight the listener is expressing himself too. We don't accuse the artist of showing off whose picture is on display at the art exhibit; nor the musician, for entertaining us with song and symphony; nor the housewife, for cooking us a toothsome meal. Nevertheless, these are socially accepted ways of self-realization.

But if a person relates an experience awkwardly and keeps on at it, despite the unfavorable reaction of his auditors; if he goes on singing and playing on an instrument when he knows his listeners are being bored or annoyed; or continues in any other way to try to gain attention in defiance of unfavorable response, he is considered a show-off; and he most certainly is if he resorts to smart-aleck remarks or monkey-shine performances.

Any one will say a child of three or four is showing off before guests if he shows them one toy after another, turns somersaults, or bangs upon the piano. Generally the child has been trained in these practices by his parents. They are subconsciously being the center of attention through their child. They want compliments for the child because they get credit for his smartness.

Of course it is both natural and right for fathers and mothers to be proud of their children. But allowing a tot to be a nuisance to guests is not helping him toward later social success. A boy who forces himself on people will grow to be a boring man.

If, for instance, you induce your tot of five to take some of the wraps as the guests arrive, find them seats, help to serve them refreshments, or minister to their comforts in some other way, the guests will be pleased and impressed with the youngster and he will have an opportunity to express himself in a socially accepted manner.

Many a parent will say to the child from six to nine, "Play for them," or, "Show them how you can dance." If the guest realizes that this will encourage the child in his lessons they won't interpret it as showing off. However, I fail to see much educational value in solo dancing, except for the unrhythmic, awkward child.

Showing off is worthy when it encourages self-denial, self-sacrifice, and ambition. But we should encourage children not to be self-conscious, then they will be effortlessly charming and will get attention without demanding it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. What is a good way to prevent and reduce tattling?

A. Quit rewarding the tattler. When you punish a child as a result of the information you gained from the one who tattled on him you approve the tattler and richly compensate him. No fun to tattle unless you can see some one get punished.

CHAPTER VI

"And let Karl know you're taking me home? Oh no! I'll go myself."

Joan wondered why everything seemed to interfere with her romance with Karl. Both Paul and Eric seemed bent on making trouble. But she could not be rude to Paul. After all, Karl seemed to like him.

The door of the club was unlocked as she slipped in and hurried down the corridor. Afterwards she wondered what instinct prompted her to pause for a moment as she stood with her hand on the doorknob of Karl Miller's office. The hall was dark, save for the crack of light beneath the door. An open window beside her led to a fire escape, where the rain fell noisily on the metal balcony. Perhaps her hesitation was due to the fear that Karl would be angry with her. Perhaps the uneasy feeling that he might discover Paul was taking her home. But Joan paused and her heart was beating heavily.

It seemed a long time but in reality it was only a few seconds that she stood there listening to Eric Strom's voice.

"Ja, Karl! Bitte!"

Karl's reply was harsh, "Nein, Nein! Es ist verboten."

Joan did not understand but instinctively her hand drew back from the door. This was a private conversation. Karl would not want her to hear.

But her nervous gesture had made a small sound, which Karl Miller's ear caught immediately.

He threw open the door with a violent gesture. "Joan! What are you doing?"

"I forgot my purse," she faltered, feeling Eric Strom's sardonic eyes upon her.

Karl's relieved smile reassured her. "Of course! Here it is."

Joan made a hasty exit, closing the door quickly behind her, but as she walked down the dark hall she realized that she was shivering.

* * *

"What's the matter?" Paul demanded as Joan got in the car. "You're as white as a ghost!"

"Nothing!" But the girl's hands were clasped nervously. "Let's go home. Please!"

Joan tried to tell herself that nothing was wrong. Just because Karl and Eric Strom had been speaking in their native tongue was no cause for alarm. Then why this shiver of apprehension that chilled her heart? She loved Karl Miller. She did not want to see anything, hear anything, or believe anything that might make it difficult to love him. She would not confess any fears or doubts even in her own heart. But she found herself saying to Paul, "Do you speak German?"

"So, that's it! You overheard Karl!"

"You haven't answered my question."

"And I am not going to," Paul said firmly as he stopped the car in front of her apartment building. "Do you mind if I come in for a minute?"

Joan was not very gracious about it. She was tired and confused. The last thing she wanted was to be forced to listen to Paul's subtle insinuations against Karl. Paul, however, settled himself comfortably before the fire, lit a cigarette and said, "Joan, why don't you quit working at the club?"

She stood before him, green eyes narrowed with anger, her head high. "I don't think it's any of your business what I do or where I work. I'm tired of your insinuations. If you have anything against Karl Miller, why don't you come out and say so? Why shouldn't I work for him?"

She threw her hat on the table and smoothed her hair in front of the mirror over the fireplace. Paul rose and touched her arm.

"I'm sorry, Joan! I guess I used the wrong approach. I suppose from your point of view I'm meddling where I have no right to."

Their eyes met in the mirror. His good-looking, clean-cut face was unsmiling, the brown eyes were serious. "You don't seem like the type of girl to be working for Karl Miller. You don't belong at the Club Elite!"

"I'm sick of hearing everyone say that. I'm old enough to know what I'm doing. I don't need advice—from anyone."

"You are a very stubborn woman." Paul laughed.

The room was cheerful in the firelight. The polished brass shone and a large blue bowl of chrysanthemums lent a gay note to the somber furnishings.

"Do you live here alone?"

"With my sister Sybil."

"And she doesn't approve of our working for Karl, either?"

"Please?" Joan cried, exasperated. "Is there any good reason why I shouldn't work for Karl? Do you know something against him?"

Paul stared into the fire but he was silent.

"Then you don't know anything?" Joan continued.

Paul tossed his cigarette into the flames. "Okay, Joan. You win. I can't say any more. But remember this. Watch your step! Will you?"

"Thanks for the advice."

"It's for your own good," Paul Sherman said, picking up his hat. "How about that date tomorrow night?"

Joan smiled faintly. "Don't you ever give up? I told you I couldn't go."

They stood at the door measuring each other with their eyes—Paul's, a mask that told her nothing. Joan's challenging him, defying him to speak one word against Karl Miller.

"I won't bother you any more then." Paul said quietly, and he shut the door behind him without even saying good night.

Joan went into the bedroom. Sybil was propped up in her bed, wearing a blue satin bed jacket, reading a magazine. "What goes on? Was that Karl?"

"No. Paul Sherman, giving me some good advice about working at the club. He doesn't think I'm the type, whatever that means."

She slipped into her warm bathrobe and sat down on the edge of her sister's bed. "I met Karl's partner, Eric Strom, tonight. He tried to make a date with me, too. It's a shame the way everyone tries to double-cross Karl."

"How in the world did you happen to come home with Paul?"

Joan explained that they had gone back to the club. She told Sybil how Karl had decided she was too tired to work and sent her home. She did not mention her curiosity at Karl's letter to Mexico, nor what she had overheard when she went back to get her purse. But before she could finish her story the telephone rang.

"Probably the wrong number," Sybil remarked as Joan ran into the living room and lifted the receiver.

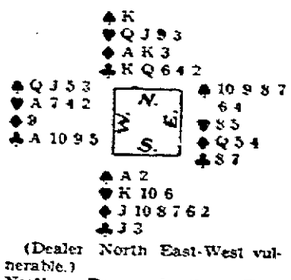
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT SIGNALS MEAN

High card signals by your partner have one kind of meaning during the play of suit contracts and another during No Trumpers. Since you don't expect many rounds of any one suit against a declarer who has named the trump, the high signals usually betoken either possession of high cards or ability to ruff. When you are defending against a No Trump contract, however, your best chance to beat it is to bring in the end cards of some long suit. Hence a high card signal then usually means possession of appreciable length.



(Dealer North East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 ♥	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Upon West's lead of the spade 3, East played the 8 to betoken his length in the suit and a desire for its repeat. The singleton K, of course, won that, and the club 2 was then shot through to the J and A. West then returned his spade 5, whereupon East felt like glaring at him. He saved his wrath until he later had confirmation of his suspicions and then blew up.

South's A took the second spade lead, and he cashed two high diamonds and then led the heart 3 to te 10 and A. West then proudly laid down his spade Q and J, making four tricks for his side and preventing any overtricks. But whatever he led back, the declarer could win it and score the last five tricks to make his contract.

Having seen East's signal, West should have counted East as havinb more spades than himself, but practically no high cards. So his second spade lead, after winning with the club J should have begun an unblocking process. It should have been one of his honors. When he later won a trick with the heart A, he could have cashed the other honor and led his 5 to his partner. East then would have run the rest of the suit, setting the contract two tricks.

Your Week-End Lesson.

If you are sitting in the opening leader's position against a No Trump game contract, see a five-card suit headed by the A-J-10 in dummy, which has no other entries, and you hold the Q, either your honor on the first lead of a singly or doubly guarded, why should you nearly always play your honor on the first lead of a small card of the suit by declarer, instead of blindly following the out-of-date Whist rule of "second hand low?"

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Members of the recently organized Big Eight Ohio high school basketball league are trying their darndest to interest Mansfield in the circuit and build it to a Big Ten, according to Tyger Tutor Vern Hoffman.

Mansfield rejected original bids for the circuit because the Tygers saw no natural rivalries in the setup, and plenty of long trips for games with strangers.

"And we haven't changed our minds," Hoffman declares.

Canton McKinley showed the best defensive game in early play of the state tournament, and the Bulldogs own the best defense Mansfield played against all year, Hoffman says.

Following the regular season finale at the Tyger gym in which McKinley defeated Mansfield by two points, Coach Bup Rearick of Canton told Hoffman:

* * *

"Your team was the first to go through our defense consistently in many weeks. And they did it in a cool and deliberate fashion."

"That was the best game we played all season," says Hoffman.

Building plans for next season, Hoffman is considering moving "Windy" Winbigler to Dick Burkholder's forward position, putting Joe Altomonte at Winbigler's guard post, developing Oscar Krupp to replace Jack Shiplet at midyear, and planting Paul Dietzel at the center position. Joe Romano at forward would complete the quintet.

Winbigler's set-shot ability from the side, his one-hand accuracy near the hoop, and his size and strength in battling for rebound shots should make him an even more important scoring cog in the Tyger machine than he was this season when he led the team in that department.

Newark's Wildcats in the present state tournament are practically the same team the Tygers will meet next season.

Lacking smoothness of other state joust entries, and showing a marked inaccuracy in shooting, the Wildcats still have the makings of a great team with another season's experience.

It's a battling club right now, putting up its man-for-man defense the length of the floor, and depending on ball thefts and fast breaks for many points.

* * *

"Newark expects great teams in football and basketball next season," says Hoffman, "and insisted we play them at Newark in both sports. The following season we meet them here."

Indians Rally In Ninth Heat

Edge Louisville 5 to 4; Tackle Giants Next.

MIAMI, Fla.—(U.P.)—The Cleveland Indians prepared today for a two-game series with the New York Giants after a ninth-inning 5 to 4 victory yesterday at Fort Myers against Louisville, American Association champions.

Roy Weatherly, who played his first game after a lengthy holdout fight, lashed out a single with the bases full in the ninth to enable the Indians to register their sixth victory of the current spring training period.

Up until the ninth the Indians collected only two hits. It was 4 to 1 for the Colonels when Cleveland teed off on Lefty Lefebvre in the ninth.

With the bases jammed, Weatherly rapped the first ball pitched for a single and Mack and Hegan scored.

Mel Harder and Don Pulford shared the Indian pitching burden. The Colonels touched Harder for six hits and three runs in five innings. Pulford allowed five hits and one run.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said Al Milnar and Joe Heving would pitch today against the Giants. Peckinpaugh added that Bob Feller would start tomorrow's game.

SERIES TIED

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons and the Providence Reds meet tonight in the third game of their American league hockey playoffs, with the score in games standing one apiece in a three out of five series.

Simon Wins Return Bout With Joe Louis

Abe Soaks Up 13-Round Beating But Gets Garden Booking on May 16

By JACK CUDDY

DETROIT—(UP)—Abe Simon, the human tank, will again test his armor plate against Joe Louis' thundering guns at Madison Square Garden, New York, May 16.

Promoter Mike Jacobs delightedly announced this return title match after big Abe's amazing showing last night against the heavyweight champion before a sell-out crowd of 18,908 fans in Olympia stadium.

More than 3,000 late arrivals in the record-breaking indoor Detroit throng were turned away from the Olympia. This was unfortunate because they missed the spectacle of a lifetime.

The New York giant upset all predictions and battled with Louis until the 13th round when Bomber Joe finally won on a technical knockout.

The bout was scheduled for 20 rounds, and at the end of the 10th it seemed it might go the distance. Simon, who had been vastly underrated, shed most of Louis' blows in true tank fashion, all the while thumping the champion's face with a wagon-tongue left jab that had Joe's left eye almost closed in the later stages of his 15th crown defense.

Simon, who never had been knocked off his feet before, hit the canvas four times and was belted half through the ropes once. But he was on his feet at the end, though staggering about helplessly with blood dripping from gashes in both brows and from cuts on nose and mouth. Referee Sam Hennessey stopped it then, at 1:20 of the 13th round.

Simon, packing 254½ pounds on a six-fot four-inch tower, was toppled in the first round by a straight right to the whiskers. "Little" Joe, scaling only 202 pounds, looked incredulous when the big fellow rose at the count of one.

Joe said in his dressing room afterwards, "I knew I was in for trouble when I saw him get up that first time, because I really smacked him good."

Abe went down for nine in the third round, and he took two nine counts in the 13th before Referee Hennessey intervened.

But Simon was doing some smacking of his own. He won the second, sixth and 10th rounds, on the United Press score sheet, and fought on even terms in the fourth and eighth. One of the two judges, Dad Butler, gave Simon the 10th round and scored eight others as even. The referee gave Simon two and one even. Judge Frank Neville gave Simon four rounds and one even.

Louis absorbed more punishment than in any bout since he was knocked out by Max Schmeling.

Cincy Keglers Take ABC Lead

Grab Four of Six Top Places In 5-Man List.

ST. PAUL —(INS)— Milwaukee bowlers, who had dominated the 41st annual American Bowling congress tournament until Cincinnati grabbed four of the six top places in the five-man event last night, will endeavor to outdo the Redlanders on another feature program tonight.

Heading the program will be two of Milwaukee's nationally known teams — Heil's Quality Products and the Pabst Blue Ribbons. The former is led by Hank Marino, former national match game champion, and Billy Sixty, bowling and golf star.

Cincinnati staged a "world series" all its own in usurping the spotlight. Schmiesing Ice Creams of Cincinnati rolled into first place with a score of 2,997—high team score of the tournament so far. Brunswick Mineralites took second with 2,904.

Another Cincinnati team, Nurre Undertakers, grabbed third with a score of 2,894, and Nurre Brothers Funeral Home landed sixth with 2,841. H. G. Packee Insurance team of Milwaukee, with 2,879, and Sacred Hearts of Syracuse, N. Y., with 2,847, held fourth and fifth places.

Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Syracuse bowlers were to see action in the doubles and singles today. As the day began, Hilla Kallas and Frank Caravella of Milwaukee held the lead in the doubles, with 1.289, and Kallas held the singles lead, with 727.

George Tishock of Milwaukee still held the all-events lead, with a score of 1,961.

KENT STATE GRAPPLER BEATS COLLEGE CHAMP

BETHLEHEM, Pa. —(U.P.)— Although sternly challenged by Michigan State, 12-time champion Oklahoma A. & M. today was favored to annex the 14th annual national collegiate wrestling tournament.

Michigan State placed four men in the semi-finals and the Aggies, without losing a wrestler, qualified six.

Minnesota, Big Ten champions, Iowa State Teachers, Temple and Rutgers each placed three men in the semi-final rounds.

An upset was registered by Mike Slepecky, Kent State unknown, over Bob Antonacci, Indiana, holder of the 121 pound crown. Slepecky held the edge after handing Antonacci a near fall in the first three minutes of their match.

Ohio U. Meets C.C.N.Y. Quint

Good Defense Expected To Test Baumholtz.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ohio university and Seton Hall, led by a pair of the most brilliant individual stars ever to appear in Madison Square Garden, tackle canny Metropolitan cage rivals tonight in the semi-finals of the National Intercollegiate Invitational basketball tournament.

Ohio university faces the small but smart City College quintet and Seton Hall opposes the big Long Island university team. With all the reserved seats for tonight and for Monday's finals already sold, indications are that the crowd will approach the Garden record of 18,341 established last Wednesday.

Bob Davies, the limber Seton Hall star, left the Garden fans gasping at his amazing performances against Rhode Island State Wednesday and no less an authority than Nat Holman, the City College coach, said he considered Davies a better player than Stanford's immortal Hank Lusetti. Frank Baumholtz, the Ohio U. star, was up against somewhat more exacting opposition in Monday's first-round game against Duquesne, but he was almost equally impressive.

There's a good chance, however, that they'll meet in the consolation game Monday rather than in the championship battle. For if Davis has a weakness, Clair Bee, the Long Island coach, is the one to spot it. So far all Bee has admitted publicly was that the best way to stop the "Harrisburg Houdini" would be to hit him with an axe. Still Long Island has a big, well-coached team that has a lot more defense than Rhode Island ever thought of and a sound, successful attack. City College also has the defense to halt Ohio's fast-breaking attack and a tricky offense of its own that produced 64 points in its opening game against Virginia.

Red Rookies To Face Knife

McKechnie Prepares to Trim Cincinnati Squad.

LAKELAND, Fla. —(U.P.)— The Cincinnati Reds journeyed here today for their second spring joust with the Detroit Tigers and several rookie members of the Redleg squad feared it would be their last trip this spring with the world champs.

Manager Bill McKechnie and General Manager Warren C. Giles are scrutinizing the squad carefully this week-end preparatory to making cuts within the near future.

A forerunner of what is to come was the optional release yesterday of Mike Dejan to the Birmingham farm club owned by Cincinnati.

Deacon Bill and Giles have given no word as to who will be the next to feel the axe. Camp followers believe, however, that Infielders Woodrow Wilson, Joe Mack and Wayne Ambler and Outfielders Kermit Lewis, Dutch Mele, Mike Christoff and Frank Secory will be wearing minor league livery soon.

Lewis who won the Eastern league batting title with .330 at Albany last summer was impressive with two singles yesterday but he is still a couple of years away from the major leagues. The Red rookies thumped Birmingham, 9 to 4, in a listless contest after Cincinnati shoved over seven runs in the first inning.

McKechnie is likely to carry 12 pitchers north with him and the mound corps will be the last to feel the cut.

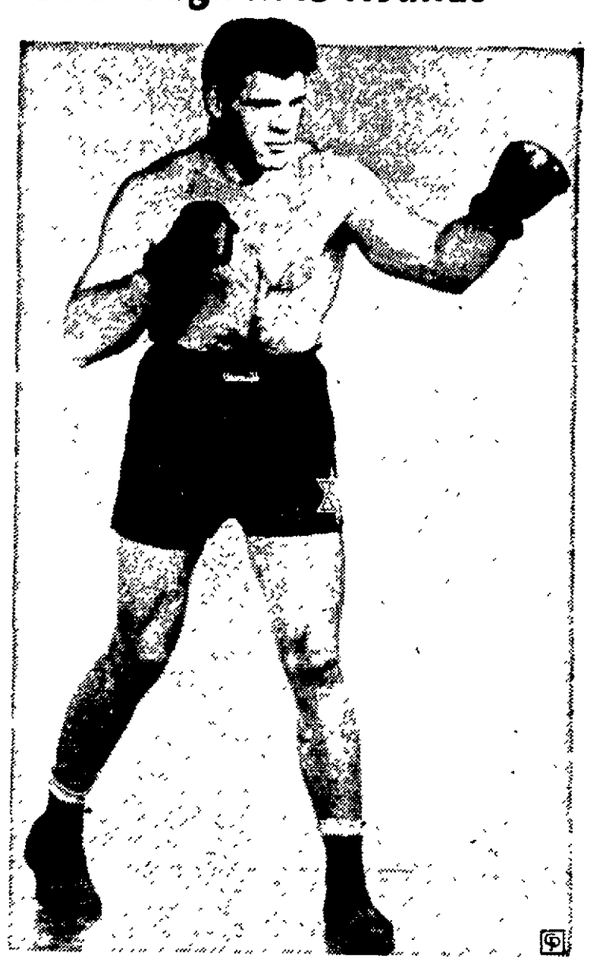
* * *

The toughest decisions facing McKechnie in regard to playing personnel are: Which two pitchers to cut away, whether Eddie Joost or Bobby Mattick will play shortstop and whether Dick West or Bill Baker is to become No. 3 catcher behind Ernie Lombardi and newly-obtained Johnny Riddle, formerly of Kansas City.

* * *

Bucky Walters who has yielded only one run in nine innings this spring and Whitey Moore face the Tigers today.

Had Enough In 13 Rounds



ABE SIMON

Big Abe Simon surprised the fistic fans of the nation last night when he soaked up a beating round after round after hitting the deck in the first minute of his heavyweight championship bout with Joe Louis. A kindly referee ruled Abe had had enough in the 13th round, but Promoter Mike Jacobs decided Simon could take it again, in May at Madison Square Garden.

Frisch Demanded Fighting Club, He's Got One Now

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Manager Frankie Frisch demanded a fighting ball club when he took over the Pittsburgh Pirates, and he's got one.

* * *

The biggest brawl of them all—of course it's a friendly sort of tussle with cutlasses and blackjacks barred—is the scramble for the pitching positions.

Ace of the hurling corps, and one of the best in the National league last year, is Alabama-born Truett Banks Sewell, or Rip, whose 16 wins against five defeats was a major item in Frisch's successful campaign to haul the Buc out of the second division.

After Sewell are listed a dozen or more pitchers battling for the six or seven places open. Two outstanding rookie applicants are Dick Conger, up from Beaumont, and Aldon Wilkie, a freshman sensation with Seattle last year. Russ Bauers has shown encouraging signs of a comeback and elongated Johnny Gee, the $75,000 tall boy, has been working hard to get over a sore arm and redeem himself after his disappointing debut in 1940.

Frisch is pretty well set with the rest of his team, and it shapes up as a good one. Flashy Elbie Fletcher at first, Frankie Gustine at second, veteran Arky Vaughan at short and Lee Handley at third make up the infield, although Debs Garms has been doing third base duty in spring games. Stu Martin is also on hand for second base service.

Fordham Frankie has two sets of outfielders, one swinging from the right side of the plate, the other from the port side. He probably will lead off with Maurice Van Robays, Vince DiMaggio and Bob Elliott, but he has Lloyd (Little Poison) Waner, Garms and young Eddie Stewart, who hit .320 with San Diego last year, to call in if need be.

YOUNGSTOWN WANTS RHIEL AS MANAGER

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — The Youngstown Sport Boosters association wants a local man as pilot of the Youngstown Browns—William J (Billy) Rhiel, native of Youngstown and former player with the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Detroit Tigers.

The association, headed by Roy J. Depaul, dispatched a telegram to that effect, to the St. Louis Browns, parent club.

Last Night's Bowling Scores

Joe Cheney showed the way to Ohio Brass league keglers last night with 201-176-194—571, and Al Stirtz had 193-157-217—567. No. 1 team turned in high total with 899-934-756—2,589.

In the Humphryes league Leroy Cleckner set the pace with 181-187-204—572. Foremen rolled high total with 751-779-799—2,329.

Gillman Returns To Denison Job

GRANVILLE —(U.P.)— Sid Gillman, assistant football coach at Ohio State for the past three seasons under Francis Schmidt, will return to Denison university as line coach next season, it was learned today.

* * *

Gillman, who left a similar position at Denison to go to Ohio State, has been assisting Tom Rogers, head coach, with spring practice. His appointment is expected to be made official next month.

Gillman succeeds C. A. Temerario who recently signed as end and center coach at Indiana.

Upsets Mark Play In State Cage Tourney

Canton McKinley, Newark Dropped From Joust; Class B Scrambled

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Eight "dark horses" were set for battle today in the semi-finals of the state high school basketball tournament as the result of a series of upsets which swept favored squads out of both class A and class B competition in the two opening rounds.

Proof that season records mean absolutely nothing when the chips go down in tournament play was offered in Friday's second round. In each game of the eight on the program, the team with the poorer record for the season came home the winner.

Still in there battling in class A are Martins Ferry, Massillon, Lakewood and Xenia Central. Up to date that quartet has won 74 and lost 11 games.

Their second round victims were Cincinnati Hughes, Springfield Township of East Akron, Canton McKinley and Newark, a quartet that had won 77 and lost seven.

In class B the "upset" angle was still more pronounced. Remaining in today's semi-finals in the smaller school sector are Midvale, Canfield, Glenford and Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home, the four having won 87 while losing 15 this season. They eliminated Hicksville, Elmore, Hanover Township of Hamilton, and Cridersville—and that foursome had won 96 while losing but seven.

At the start the experts had a hunch Canton McKinley, last year's finalist, unbeaten Middletown, twice-champion Newark, or dark horse Martins Ferry would take the class A laurels. Of that group only Martins Ferry is still in.

In class B were five teams which had been beaten but once, and another which had a clean sweep of 21 games, but all those are out of the running now. Of the semi-finalists in class B Midvale had dropped five, Xenia O. S. S. O. and Canfield four each, and Glenford two.

Class A is minus its two unbeaten squads, Springfield Township and Middletown, and once-beaten Canton McKinley, but twice-beaten Martins Ferry and Lakewood thrice-defeated Xenia Central, and Massillon which has lost four, are still in there pitching.

Two youngsters who broke the individual one-game scoring records in the opening round contests bowed out last night to lose their chance at the all-game mark. Dee Snelling of Newark, who scored 27 in the opening class A scrap to beat Youngstown Rayen, added 14 last night but couldn't stave off a 47-38 beating at the hands of Xenia.

Roger Phillips, Cridersville's all-Ohio center, who counted 33 in the opener against Fairfield Township for new class B record, was stopped with 11 in the second round as Cridersville bowed to Midvale, 30 to 23.

Ed Fowler, Hanover's outstanding center, came up with a 31-point spree, running his two-game count to 51, but his team lost to Canfield, last year's class B finalists, 48 to 42. All-Ohio Guard Chet McPhee of Canfield, with a 23-point splurge in the same game, ran his two-game record to 45, and if he can get into the finals he has a good chance to erase the tourney record of 68 set in 1934 by Orlyn Roberts of the famed Waterloo Wonders.

Dick Shrider, Glenford's All-Ohio star, scored 16 against Hicksville to reach 31 for two tilts. Against Hicksville he got his markers when they were needed, for Glenford went into the final quarter on the short end of a 28-22 count, and Shrider scored 11 points in that chapter to lead his mates to a 37-33 victory.

With the field full of dark-horses, the unaffiliated fans are rooting for two Xenia squads to grab the laurels. If they do, that Greene county town of 10,000 will be the first in history to have both champions.

* * *

Regardless of the outcome, however, the Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' Home can claim the title of "No. 1 class B athletes of the year," for the Cadets hold the class B track and field championship, boasted an undefeated football season—and here they are in the basketball semi-finals, and going strong.

What makes a fish so slippery? His body is covered with a mucous, constantly secreted by special glands, which minimizes the friction between his body and the water.

The great manta, or sea devil, of the Mississippi is one of the world's strangest fish. Flat and square in shape, it sometimes reaches a width, and length of 18 feet, and a weight of 10,000 pounds. It possesses incredible strength and when harpooned can tow a boat backward while the engine runs full speed ahead.

The shifting ice of Angel Glacier, which flows from Mount Edith Cavell in Jasper National Park, Alberta, causes a roar which seems to come from the very heart of the mountain itself. At the base of the glacier the ice is from 150 to 300 feet deep.

Have you looked over your fishing tackle since last season? If not, better do it now, as those warm spring days will soon be here. And if your pet rod needs some repairing, your reel some new parts, we can supply just the parts you require to put them in first class condition again. Then while you are at it, fill in any missing tackle now, from Yuncker's complete selections, and you'll be "all set" when the season opens.

A seven-inch chameleon can capture a fly 12 inches away without moving. His artillery consists of a tongue longer than himself . . . a lightning-like, sticky-tipped weapon which is shot out of the mouth in much the same way that a water melon seed can be shot from between the fingers.

When a species of small crab, inhabiting the Great Barrier Reef is hungry, it siezes an anemone and holds it aloft. The anemone waves its tenacles distractedly and presently catches a tidbit. The crab promptly takes this away, eats it, and again brandishes the anemone until his hunger is satisfied.

Shooters will be interested in a new type sub-machine gun bearing the name Reising after its inventor. It weighs but 6½ pounds, is suitable for regular army use, especially parachute troops, and fires .45 caliber shells at the rate of 500 per minute. Plans are made to produce the gun at a rate of 1000 a day.

Two Ex-Tygers On Scot Squad

Horvath, Simon Battle For Grid Positions.

WOOSTER—Daniel Simon and Mike Horvath, students from Mansfield, are on the Wooster college football squad which has reported to Coach John M. Swigart for spring practice.

The Scot coach has planned daily workouts before the ten-day spring vacation begins March 28 and then will continue drills for three weeks after classes are resumed April 8.

* * *

Swigart expects to try out a number of his reserves from last season and members of the freshman squad in various positions, looking forward to making replacements of the seniors to be graduated in June.

* * *

The Wooster grid mentor is also planning to try out some new plays this spring. He has worked out some spinners on his balanced line-"Z" formation to take advantage of the new rule which permits the ball to be handed forward.

Simon, a junior, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Simon, 144 Blymyer avenue, Mansfield. Last season he was a reserve on the Wooster squad.

Horvath, a freshman, lives at 259 Hedges street, Mansfield. Last season he won his freshman numeral.

GOLF CHAMPION ASKS DEFERMENT

GREENWICH, Conn.—(INS)—An appeal of his class 1-A draft classification on "medical grounds" has been filed by Dick Chapman, national amateur golf champion, according to an announcement today by the Greenwich draft board.

Revealing Chapman's appeal, the board said its examining physicians had found nothing wrong with the golf star and had certified him for immediate military service. Chapman's case will be heard next month.

STOCK MARKET KEEPS BALANCE IN SLOW TRADE

Fractional Losses and Gains Even Up In Quiet, Short Session on Street.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Fractional losses and gains were about evenly divided in today's early stock market dealings.

Improved at a quiet opening were Standard Oil of N. J., American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Motors and Allied Chemical. Declines were posted for Bethlehem Steel, American Can, General Electric and Anaconda.

Market followers saw further confirmation of the industrial recovery stride in the forecast of the bureau of agricultural economics that unemployment in the nation would drop to around 2,800,000 persons by October of this year as compared with about 5,300,000 at present.

Those watching lumber production for business clues noted the figures of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association for the week ended March 15 showing output 1 per cent under the preceding week but 14 per cent larger than in the corresponding period last year.

65-Year-Old Debt Of Town Cancelled By Woman's Death

ATHOL, Mass.—(U.P.)—This town was relieved of a 65-year-old financial obligation today by the death of Mrs. Addie J. Stratton, 83.

Back in 1876 when the town needed money, Mrs. Stratton's father, Lyman Jennings, a farmer, drove a Yankee bargain. He gave the town $9,000 and in return the town agreed to pay him $540 a year as long as he lived, pay his widow $170 a year as long as she survived him, and his children $120 a year as long as they lived.

Jennings lived until 1908, collecting $17,280 from the town. His widow lived to collect two payments totaling $340. Mrs. Straton has collected for 31 years, in all $3,720.

Officers, Equipment Brought to Colony From France.

SAIGON, French Indo-China—(AP)—The French passenger ship Desirade, a converted transport, arrived here today bringing 300 native troops, 100 French army officers and much equipment from France.

It was understood here that many more troops and officers are scheduled to arrive from France soon. French naval authorities denied, however, that three French warships also are expected to reach here.

A partial demobilization of French military forces already in Indo-China has been decided at a secret military conference of French army officials, it was learned.

might penetrate the neutrality belt.

The high command also stated that strong German bomber forces last night raided "war-important objectives" and harbors in southern and eastern England last night.

In a raid on a southern English port heavy explosions and large fires were observed and docks and warehouses were severely damaged, the announcement said.

Attack Reported Off Newfoundland

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT,—(AP)—Freighter crews said today two British vessels may have been sunk by a German surface raider 300 miles southeast of Newfoundland.

20,000 Fire Bombs Fall on Plymouth

PLYMOUTH, Eng. —(INS)— At least 20,000 incendiary bombs and hundreds of heavy calibre high explosives dropped by Nazi raiders in their second successive "blitz" night assault on Plymouth left scenes of utter desolation in this southwest coast seaport and naval base today.

Crowds of homeless people wandered through the smouldering ruins of razed homes and buildings blasted in the two nights of attack.

Many others were dead or injured, and casualties were still piling up as rescue squads extricated the killed and wounded from debris. Men, women and children were trapped under smashed buildings, waiting to be rescued.

Like Thursday night's attack, last night's raid was one of the heaviest any part of England has yet seen.

Following their familiar tactics, the Germans first rained incendiary bombs on the city. Fires leaped up here and there, although fire watchers and fighters worked heroically to douse them even while the bombs fell.

No definite sentence has been passed, these sources said, and the inference was that Allen would be held until information he was charged with gathering while in the occupied zone loses its news value.

cause they involve a more active Soviet policy in the Balkans than yet has been shown.

It was noted here that any Russian assurances to Turkey constitute at least tacit support for an active ally of Great Britain. However, there was little doubt here that Russia has been disturbed by the German advance in the Balkans, the occupation of Rumania and Bulgaria and now the possibility that Yugoslavia, too, will fall into the Axis camp.

Turkey, it was thought, would be inclined to regard any word from Russia as a "go-ahead" to defend the Dardanelles with whatever aid Britain can give her in the knowledge that her rear is safe from Russian threat.

LASHES DUES

Norris Asks Leaders to Stop Union Collections.

WASHINGTON — (AP) —Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.) today asked the presidents of CIO and AFL to prevent local labor unions from collecting what Norris called "perfectly outrageous" dues from defense workers.

The Nebraskan declared that if such practices persisted, public opinion might force congress "to pass legislation in regard to this which may be injurious to labor's cause."

Norris, sponsor and supporter of much federal legislation, made his appeal by letters to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.
